SPECIAL NOTE

On 12 September, the European Commission announced new proposals in the fields of migration and external action during the annual State of the Union speech. The new initiatives aim to:

- ★ Support the effective management of the EU's external borders by increasing the operational staff of the European Border and Coast Guard Agency, creating a standing corps of 10 000 border guards with better equipment and executive powers;
- ★ Review the rules on return to reinforce the effectiveness of the EU's return policy. Some of the core objectives include the removal of obstacles in the application of the 2008 Return Directive, ensuring simple and transparent procedures, as well as protecting the returnees and their fundamental rights;
- ★ Facilitate the work of the EU Agency for Asylum (EASO) by providing it with enhanced staff, tools and financial means in order to assist Member States in a more effective and efficient way throughout the asylum procedure;
- ★ Enhance legal pathways to Europe through a new EU Blue Card, a more efficient resettlement scheme and cooperation with African countries through pilot projects aiming at reducing irregular migration.

1. GENERAL POLICY DEVELOPMENTS

EU DEVELOPMENTS AND UPDATES

In August, Greece and Spain received further emergency assistance to respond to the migratory pressure. On 1 August, the European Commission supported the improvement of reception conditions in Greece with additional € 37.5 million and on 2 August awarded € 3 million to Spain mainly to cover costs related to additional staff deployed in the borders.

- ★ On 2 July, the European Commission announced € 45.6 million in emergency assistance to Spain and Greece as a response to the increasing challenges in the migration field. Increased arrivals in both countries call for improvements in reception conditions and the quality of return facilities and infrastructure for return transfers. This emergency funding awarded € 20 million to the UNHCR in Greece and € 25.6 million to the Spanish Red Cross, Ministry of Employment and Social Security and to the Ministry of Interior.

NATIONAL DEVELOPMENTS

- ★ Germany: On 17 August, the Federal Minister of the Interior, Building and Community and its Greek counterpart reached an agreement to allow a closer cooperation in terms of rejection at the border and family reunification cases under the Dublin III Regulation. If an internal border check at the German-Austrian border reveals that an asylum applicant has already lodged an asylum application in Greece, it will be possible for Germany to return the person concerned directly to Greece within 48 hours on the basis of this agreement. This does not apply to unaccompanied minors. In return, Germany is prepared to speed up the process of family reunification by the end of 2018. Both sides confirmed their commitment to continue working towards common European solutions and their mutual solidarity and support in case of future migratory challenges.

On 6 August, Germany and Spain reached the same agreement, which entered into force on 11 August.

- ★ France: On 10 September, the law n°2018-778 "for a managed migration and an effective right of asylum and a successful integration" was published. It has three main objectives: firstly, to strengthen the protection of the persons by improving the residence right for vulnerable persons and reforming the integration policy; secondly, to converge the procedures with the European law and practices (e.g. accelerated asylum seeker processing); and thirdly by adapting the French law to the operational realities to improve return policy.

- ★ Ireland: The Department of Justice and Equality launched a consultation process on draft National Standards for accommodation offered to people in the protection process. The feedback will inform the development of the final National Standards, which will apply to all service providers contracted by the Reception and Integration Agency (RIA) to operate and manage accommodation centres.

Estimates show highest net inward migration for Ireland since 2008. The 2018 Population and Migration Estimates released by the Central Statistics Office show that the number of immigrants has increased by 6.7 % year-on-year, from 84 600 in 2017 to 9 300 in 2018. 593 600 non-Irish nationals were resident in Ireland in April 2018, accounting for 12.2 % of the overall population.

- ★ Italy: In July 2018, the Minister of the Interior presented his policy programme on migration and security in front of the Constitutional affairs commissions of the lower and higher chambers. He insisted on the need to reduce flows towards Italy by intercepting would-be migrants before they reach European soil. Along the same line, he emphasised the need to collaborate with Libya, notably to increase the country's standards in human rights matters. To complete the framework, the Ministry of the Interior proposed to increase the number of detention centres holding migrants pending deportation as well as to increase the number of offenses leading to expulsion sanctions.

In line with this programme, a decree on security and immigration is foreseen to be approved in October 2018. The text aims at fixing some of the systems' shortcomings. The innovations introduced are to improve security whilst guaranteeing access to protection for those in need. They notably consist in prolonging the possible duration of stays in detention centres to ease returns and in the identification of a definite list of objective motives for which one may be granted protection.

- ★ The Netherlands: During the reporting period, the asylum process of two Armenian children elicited discussions on extending Children's Pardon (the regulation meant for long-term residing children of asylum seekers or unaccompanied minors who do not have a residence permit). In May 2008, the children and their mother applied for an asylum permit. Although the request was denied, the mother of the children appealed several times. Nevertheless, after several decrees the judgment towards the mother and children was that they had to return to Armenia. The mother returned to Armenia on 14 August 2017 and on 8 September 2018 the children had to return as well. Shortly before departure, due to developments in the case, the Minister of Migration used his discretionary power to decide that the children could stay in the Netherlands. However, the Minister of Migration and the Prime Minister emphasised that the current regulations on long-term residing children will be maintained, meaning that the Children's Pardon will not be extended. In addition, a commission of inquiry will research whether all organisations involved have acted in accordance with the legal and regulatory provisions in this specific case. Also, another independent commission of inquiry has been established to research the emergence of long-term stay of migrants and the stacking of procedures in general.

In a letter of 5 July, the Minister presented a timetable for the expected proposals for introducing greater flexibility in the asylum chain. This is part of the 'Comprehensive agenda on Migration' presented by the government. In this agenda, the policy intentions as stated in the coalition agreement are linked by means of six connected pillars. The goal is to implement a more flexible and comprehensive asylum system. Some of the measures are: the development of communal locations for aliens, a common schedule for the asylum process between chain partners, and proposals to accelerate the asylum process in accordance with European rules.

On 11 September, the Minister of Migration informed of the intention to modernise nationality rights as part of the Coalition Agreement of 10 October 2017. The modernisation includes: (1) an extension of the possibility to possess multiple nationalities for future first generation immigrants and emigrants, and (2) a mandatory moment of choice in which the children of those future generations should choose one nationality. In order to modernise the nationality rights, a legislative proposal has to be implemented, most probably in 2019.

2. IMPLEMENTATION OF THE COMMON EUROPEAN ASYLUM SYSTEM

EU DEVELOPMENTS AND UPDATES

- ★ On 20 August, the European Commission committed € 9 million in emergency assistance to support healthcare provision for asylum seekers in Italy. Around 42 000 people in need and especially vulnerable groups could benefit from this financial aid across different Italian regions.

- ★ According to a survey conducted by the Pew Research Centre, released on 19 September, the majority of Europeans citizens are positive towards the idea of receiving refugees from countries where there is war and violence. However, they disapprove the way the EU is dealing with the refugee issue.

Relocation and Resettlement

- ★ On 31 August, the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) urged Greece to transfer people from the Moria hotspot to the mainland due to bad living conditions and overcrowding. On 18 September, the Greek government announced that it will move around 2 000 asylum-seekers from the island Lesbos to the mainland by the end of September.

Judgment of the European Court of Justice – Case C-369/17

On 13 September, the Court of Justice ruled that an individual, who is deemed to have 'committed a serious crime', should not be excluded from eligibility for subsidiary protection on the basis of the sole criterion of the penalty provided for a specific crime under national law. The authority or national court that is responsible for the application for subsidiary protection should further investigate the case in order to assess the seriousness of the crime.

LATEST RELEVANT STATISTICS

- ★ On 20 September, Eurostat published its quarterly report on asylum. The first-time asylum applicants in the EU decreased by 12% in the second quarter of 2018 compared with the same quarter of 2017. Out of 151 000 asylum applications, 137 000 (91%) were first-time applicants. Syrian, Afghan and Iraqi were the top 3 citizenships of asylum seekers, lodging 18 300, 9 200 and 8 400 applications respectively. The highest number of first-time asylum applicants in the second quarter of 2018 was registered in Germany (33 700, or 25 % of all applicants), followed by France (26 100, or 19 %), Greece (16 300, or 12 %), Spain (16 200, or 12 %) and Italy (13 700, or 10 %).

NATIONAL DEVELOPMENTS

- ★ Austria: On 14 August, the Act Amending the Aliens Law 2018¹ was passed in the Austrian National Council, amending – among others – the Settlement and Residence Act, the Aliens Police Act 2005, the Asylum Act 2005, the Federal Office for Immigration and Asylum Procedures Act, the Citizenship Act 1985 as well as the Federal Basic Care Act 2005.

One of the main goals of the Act Amending the Aliens Law 2018 was the transposition of Directive 2016/801 (students and researchers) into Austrian national law. Besides the mentioned transposition, the Federal Office for Immigration and Asylum Procedures Act was adapted in order to establish new provisions. Now, authorities are allowed to evaluate data carriers of asylum seekers and confiscate cash of foreigners of up to € 840.² Furthermore, the period for appeal was changed for certain procedures according to the Federal Office for Immigration and Asylum Procedures Act.

The new provision in the Federal Basic Care Act 2005 foresees that asylum seekers receiving support according to this law are now obliged to contribute to the costs of the support by means of their confiscated cash.³

The adapted Aliens Police Act 2005 now includes penal provisions regarding unlawful stay in Austria despite a valid entry ban or a prohibition of stay after having left Austria because of such decisions. In such cases a fine from € 5.000 Euro to € 15.000 or imprisonment of up to six weeks can be imposed.⁴

² Para 35a, 39a and 39 Federal Office for Immigration and Asylum Procedures Act.

³ Para 2 subpara 1b Federal Basic Care Act 2005.

⁴ Para 120 subpara 1c Aliens Police Act 2005.

The Asylum Act 2005 was adapted regarding the cessation of the asylum status. Where concrete indications exist, such as travelling to the country of origin or the application and issuing of a passport of the country of origin, a withdrawal procedure has to be initiated.⁵

The Citizenship Act 1985 was adapted as well, rising the waiting period for the Austrian citizenship to ten years for persons with asylum status.⁶

★ Croatia: On 4 July, the Ordinance on the participation in the payment of accommodation costs of asylum seekers, persons granted subsidiary protection and persons granted international protection (Official Gazette 59/2018) entered into force on grounds of the Act on International and Temporary Protection.

★ Cyprus: In 2018, Cyprus has been subject to severe migratory pressures, predominantly from persons in need of international protection. The latest statistical data confirm that Cyprus is one of the top receiving Member States in ratio to its population. During the first eight months of 2018, international protection applications continued to show an increasing trend, namely 55% higher than in the corresponding period of 2017. In August 2018, the pending cases were 5 257 compared to 2 262 pending cases in August 2017.

★ Germany: The draft law of 1 August amending the Asylum Act provides that applicants for international protection are not only required to cooperate in the asylum procedure, but also if a revocation or a withdrawal procedure has to be conducted. In case of a refusal of cooperation, the draft law also includes a penalty payment. Interior Minister Horst Seehofer further explained that the asylum decisions which have particularly been taken between 2015 and 2017 should be reviewed.

On 1 August, following extensive discussions, the first so-called 'anchor centre' (Centre for Arrival, Decision and Return) was launched in Bavaria. According to Interior Minister Horst Seehofer, the so-called anchor centres should, inter alia, speed up the expulsion of asylum seekers whose applications have been rejected. Until their right to stay is determined, the asylum applicants will be housed in these centres. These facilities are part of the 'Migration Master Plan' which was submitted by the Interior Minister and discussed within the Government coalition in July 2018.

In summer 2018, an unprecedented number of 850 rejected asylum seekers enjoyed the protection of the church. As a matter of fact, the practice of church asylum is discussed controversially not only in the public but also within the churches. According to some politicians, the church asylum can be considered as a threat to the rule of law and the separation of powers. Even though an agreement was reached between the churches and the Federal Office for Migration and Refugees, some politicians have become increasingly uncompromising towards this practice. Hence, the district administration of Rhein-Hunsrück-Kreis filed a complaint against nine pastors who provided a shelter for rejected asylum seekers.

★ Finland: The Finnish Immigration Service updated its decision-making practices with regard to asylum seekers from Afghanistan. The update was performed because, on 30 August 2018, UNHCR published its guidelines on assessing the need for international protection of asylum seekers from Afghanistan.

On 3 July, the Ministry of Interior launched a project to investigate and draft possible amendments to the Aliens Act concerning the processing of subsequent applications for international protection and the implementation of the Finnish Immigration Service's decisions enabled by the EU Asylum Procedures Directive. In connection with this project, an amendment required by the Court of Justice of the European Union will also be made to the Aliens Act. Under this amendment, the base date for assessing a refugee's age in family reunification cases should be the date on which the application for international protection was submitted.

So far in 2018, about 2 300 persons have applied for asylum this year. About 1 100 of the applications are from applicants who have previously received at least one asylum decision. By the end of July, the largest number of subsequent applications was submitted by Iraqis (about 710 applications), who are the largest group of asylum seekers in Finland.

★ The Netherlands: On 17 August, following the publication of a new country report, changes in policy for asylum applicants from China were announced. The report stated that the situation of political opponents, human rights lawyers and political dissidents has deteriorated. On this basis, the Minister of

In its judgement of 25 July, the Court of Justice ruled that Palestinians that have been granted refugee status from the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees (UNRWA) and are beneficiaries of effective protection or assistance from the agency are not entitled to refugee status under EU law. If, however, a Palestinian is at serious risk, cannot receive UNRWA's assistance and had to leave the UNRWA area of operations, that person could obtain refugee status in the EU.

⁵ Para 7 subpara 2 Asylum Act 2005.

⁶ Para 11a subpara 7 Citizenship Act 1985.

Migration concluded that these specific groups are now seen as a risk group, making it easier for aliens to obtain an asylum permit if they make it plausible they are part of one of these groups.

On 31 July, changes in policy for asylum applicants from Iraq were adopted. For example, stateless Palestinians from Iraq, with the exception of the Kurdistan Region of Iraq, are now viewed as a vulnerable minority group and the definition of a 'single woman' was changed in accordance with the country policies towards Afghanistan and Somalia.

Judgment of the European Court of Justice – Case C-213/17 X

On 5 July, the Court of Justice ruled in the case C-213/17 X that where an applicant for international protection has been surrendered by one Member State to another Member State under a European Arrest Warrant and is staying on the territory of that second Member State without having lodged a new application for international protection there, that second Member State may request the first Member State to take back that applicant and is not required to decide to examine the application lodged by that applicant.

On 26 July, changes regarding the list of groups that are at risk in Somalia took effect. Added to this list are: leaders of clans who support the government and politically active persons (e.g. important politicians, members of the Somalian army, human rights activists and members of NGO's who attract the negative attention of Al-Shabaab). Beneficiaries of international protection who return to areas of Al-Shabaab are no longer viewed as being at risk of group persecution. However, as an individual, they are still at risk to be viewed as a spy and therefore should fear persecution by Al-Shabaab.

On 11 July, the Minister of Migration informed that asylum requests from Afghan families with minor children will no longer be rejected on the basis that they could ostensibly choose to settle in another part of Afghanistan. This change in policy follows the recently published thematic situation report from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the Country Guidance Notes on Afghanistan from the European Asylum Support Office (EASO). The special asylum policy for Afghanistan will otherwise remain in effect. Various groups will retain their recognition as at-risk groups, including ethnic and religious minorities, LGBTI individuals, converts and Afghan journalists.

After two years of decline, the occupation of asylum reception services has increased in the past three months. As a consequence, the Central Agency for the Reception of Asylum Seekers (COA) has taken about 2 000 reserve places at current reception locations into use that fall within existing management agreements with relevant municipalities. The increase in asylum reception is partly due to the fact that the housing of permit holders lags behind the objectives, caused by housing shortage.

- ★ Poland: By the end of June, 2 100 applications for international protection were lodged in Poland, mainly by citizens of Russia and Ukraine. The conditions for granting international protection were met by a total of 255 people. 1 300 received a negative decision and 1 000 proceedings were discontinued.

There is a growing number of Georgian citizens interested in living in Poland. In the first half of this year, applications for temporary residence permits were submitted by 4 000 Georgian - five times more than in the same period of 2017.

- ★ Sweden: In July, a new pilot project for the processing of asylum applications was initiated by the Swedish Migration Agency. The aim of the project is to speed up and increase the efficiency of the asylum procedure, and to combine the accommodation of asylum seekers and the examination of their applications into one comprehensive process. The pilot's ambition is that 50% of all new asylum applications shall be decided within 30 days. The project is based on an already existing method of sorting asylum applications into different tracks, depending on the characteristics of each case, which has been used since 2017. The pilot will be carried out within the Migration Agency's administrative region West, which includes the city of Gothenburg. The title of the project is "Asyl 360", which shall symbolise the pilot's all-encompassing perspective.
- ★ United Kingdom: On 3 August, updates to policy guidance on asylum seekers with care needs were published. 3. UNACCOMPANIED MINORS AND VULNERABLE GROUPS

EU DEVELOPMENTS AND UPDATES

- ★ On 3 August, the United Nations Committee against Torture ruled against the expulsion of an Eritrean torture survivor from Switzerland to Italy under the Dublin Regulation. The Committee stated that the expulsion would be a violation of the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment since the torture victim would be deprived of the necessary conditions for his rehabilitation.

NATIONAL DEVELOPMENTS

- ★ Croatia: By the Government Decision as of 30 August 2018 a new Protocol in dealing with unaccompanied minors has entered into force. With the Protocol more effective and efficient national system will be put in place in relation to unaccompanied minors.
- ★ Greece: In July 2018, a new guardianship law (Law 4554/18.7.2018) was adopted by the Hellenic Parliament. It foresees the possibility of foster care for unaccompanied minors among the mixed migration flows and the establishment of a state network of professional guardians, providing targeted support to this population, facilitating access to legal protection and basic social services as well as ensuring the assessment and determination of unaccompanied children's best interest and thus increasing their protection from trafficking and exploitation risk. For the first time in the Greek legislation on aliens, reception and asylum procedures, a guardianship system is established. The new law covers non-Greek nationals and stateless unaccompanied minors, as well as separated children and introduces the possibility to appoint a professional guardian. It also provides that a Best Interest Assessment and Determination with the use of specific tools should precede any decisions made regarding the minor.

Following the adoption of the law n. 4540/2018 (see 23rd EMN bulletin), the three-month period foreseen for the smooth transition of the responsibility for the protection of unaccompanied and separated minors from the Ministry for Migration to the Ministry of Labour, Social Security and Social Solidarity, has now expired. The two Ministries are currently working in close cooperation on issues concerning unaccompanied minors and separated minors. Since May 2018, Law 4540/2018 has been implementing in relation to unaccompanied minors who are accommodated in safe zones within the reception and identification centres (RICs), especially set up for them by the Reception and Identification Service and other agencies involved. Therein, unaccompanied minors are safe and spend their time with tailor-made educational and recreational activities.

The Reception and Identification Service, in cooperation with other agencies, is currently compiling a Standards and Procedures Manual for the protection of vulnerable groups, victims of human trafficking and gender violence victims residing in hotspots.

In the reporting period, the National Centre for Social Solidarity (EKKA) continued to lead BID (Best Interest Determination) panels with other key stakeholders in order to review cases, under the DUBS scheme programme with the view to resettle unaccompanied children to the United Kingdom. Furthermore, during August, EKKA undertook an impact assessment for the 'Capacity building plan for strengthening quality of care in accommodation centres for unaccompanied minors' which had been initiated in November 2017. The assessment will partly inform EKKA's strategy on assessing and monitoring accommodation centres for unaccompanied minors.

In September, EKKA, as a partner in the EU funded (AMIF) Project "TRAM – Trafficking along Migration Routes: Identification and Integration of Victims of Trafficking among Vulnerable Groups and Unaccompanied Children", organised a training seminar in Thessaloniki, in collaboration with the Lead partner – ICMPD. The seminar was addressed to public stakeholders, such as the Reception & Identification Centre (RIC) of Fylakio, Evros and the Open Accommodation Facilities of the Reception & Identification Service and civil society organisations and UNHCR to discuss the outcome of TRAM research on identification of victims of trafficking.

The same law also made female genital mutilation a criminal offence.

- ★ The Netherlands: On 4 July, the Minister of Migration announced that the Naturalisation Service (IND) will change the way it assesses the credibility of LGBT asylum seekers and converts. IND interviewers and decision-makers will ask asylum seekers about their personal experience, making it easier for asylum seekers to tell their own authentic story. LGBT cases will no longer focus on the awareness process or the level of self-acceptance. This shift in approach is the Minister's response to a motion in which the government has been asked to ascertain whether the assessment of this type of asylum application could be improved.
- ★ Poland: Around 878 school-aged children are currently within the procedure for applying for international protection in Poland. The vast majority have started a new year of education in primary schools during the reporting period.
- ★ Sweden: Between July and September, roughly 10 500 young migrants applied for a residence permit for upper-secondary school studies in Sweden. As reported in the last edition of the EMN bulletin, a new law that aims at making it possible for young unaccompanied asylum seekers, whose asylum applications were rejected, to apply for a residence permit for studies at upper secondary schools, was passed by the Swedish Parliament in June. This law (of a temporary nature) is expected to regularise the legal situation of several thousand young migrants who had come to Sweden as unaccompanied minors and had their asylum applications rejected following long waiting times. The time frame for residence permit applications under the temporary law ended on 30 September 2018.
- ★ United Kingdom: On 26 July, the Lord Chancellor decided to lay an amendment to the Legal Aid, Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Act 2012 (LASPO) to bring unaccompanied and separated children back into the scope of legal aid for immigration matters.

The Czech Republic also extended the scope of project focusing on unskilled and medium skilled workers. As of June 2018, Serbia became an eligible country for this project besides Mongolia and Philippines. The main aim of both projects is to facilitate the lodging of applications for employment cards (single permit for the purpose of employment) at the Embassies of the Czech Republic.

People who have been living in Estonia on a legal basis for at least five years and wishing to apply for Estonian citizenship and who meet the main requirements set for the citizenship application procedure can sign this agreement.

On 15 July, the amendments to the Aliens Act came into force. The new amendments foresee that the top specialists are excluded from the calculation of fulfilment of the immigration quota. The amendments also foresee the prolongation of the short-term employment period in Estonia, permitting short-term employment for up to 365 days within 455 consecutive days unless otherwise provided by the Aliens Act.

There were additional provisions enacted which foresee that upon the extension of a residence permit for employment, the applicant is required to have the Estonian language proficiency at least at the language proficiency level A2, with some exceptions.
